EMERGENCY MINIMALLY INVASIVE SURGERY: HOW FAR HAVE WE COME?

RICCIONE, Palazzo del Turismo
27 May 2022

Introduction

Minimally invasive surgery has spread so widely that it has now become the primary surgical approach in daily elective surgery. An increase in expertise in elective surgery has led to a progressive increase in the use of minimally invasive approaches in the emergency setting. While multiple guidelines have extensively explored the role of minimally invasive techniques in elective surgery, the role of this technique has not been concretely established in emergency surgery, and often the defining factor remains the skills of the individual surgeon. Despite the fact that emergency procedures constitute a significant percentage of the surgical activity carried out in both central and peripheral hospitals. Furthermore, the pandemic from which we are struggling to emerge has not only disrupted our daily lives, it has posed many obstacles to minimally invasive surgery, even in emergencies, to the extent that subjects such as the evacuation of fumes in surgery have become hot topics. We have organised a day of topics discussing emergency minimally invasive surgery. Riccione, with its proud heritage of hospitality will host the conference, which we hope will attract many participants and an equally significant approval by all.
